Millionaire's Pretty Daughter Marries His Cashter.

From the New York Advertiser. Charles Broadaway Rouss, the muli-millionaire merchant of this city, has a sen-in law, and although he had small voice in the selection of the young gentleman who occupies this inimate relationship, he has taken the natter with characteristic philosophy. The news, which was first learned by Mr. Rouss on Sunday afternoon last, was made public by the following announcement which appeared yester-

Lee-Rouss.-On October 18, by the Rev. W. B. Brush, of New York, Virginia Duane, daughter of C. B. Rouss, to David Lee, son of R. Charles Lee, of Hartford County, Md.

Miss Virginia Duane Rouss, who is known to her father and friends as 'Jennie," is the only daughter of the eccentric merchant, who takes pride in saying that twenty years ago he was sleeping in Central Park in this city for want of money to secure a lodging. She is twenty-four years of age, a blonde and decidedly pretty. With her parents she lives at the luxurious home No. 632 Fifth avenue, and her natty little victoria is a familiar one in the afternoon carriage parade in the park drives. Four years ago Mr. Rouss received a letter from his cousin, Ralph C. Lee, of Jerusalem, Hartford County, Md., asking that his son David be given a position in Mr. Rouss' great store. The latter promptly complied, and young David, who was at that time but nineteen, came to this city and entered Mr. Rouss' employ. As a relative he was taken by his employer to his own home, where he has since made his home. At the store Lee proved active and capable, and was speedily advanced to the position of cashier. At home he proved an agreeable as well as an unusually bright young man, and blind though Mr. Rouss is, both he and his wife could see that their daughter was much interested in him. The interest which soon developed into something stronger, was mutual, but so carefully did the young lady's parents conceal their sentiments in he matter that the young people feared to ask the much desired consent. Mr. Rouss says now that he would have willingly accorded it, but the young people were taking no chances. Every day David was at the store until evening, and nearly every day the little owner called to take him home

o dinner. Last Sunday morning the time long vatched for came. Mr. Rouss, who is at his store punctually at 7 a. m. during the week, rests until afternoon on Sundays. Mrs. Rouss is similarly less active on the Sabbath, so while they were both enjoying their repose the young people slipped out together They proceeded directly to the home of the Rev. Wilbur B. Brush, at No. 463 West Forty-fourth street. Here in the presence of the necessary witformed. The newly married couple sent a telegram to Mr. Rouss and then lives.

Monday morning young Lee reportto Mr. Rouss that he had married his daughter. Five minutes later he was at his desk, and Mr. Rouss was dictating to one of his numerous pretty typewriters as calmly as if nothing of the least importance had occurred. Speaking of it yesterday to a reporter for the Morning Advertiser Mr. Rouss

"The announcement affected about as much as if a man had told me he had sold a thousand bales of I can't even say I was sur-I have been expecting something of the sort for some time, and am perfectly satisfied. The young people have come to my home at No. 632 Fifth avenue, which is amply large enough for all of us, and they can make it their home so long as they

"I don't see why they stepped out in this unceremonious fashion, as it was wholly unnecessary, but if they wanted to its all right. I don't know either why they went to a minister. If they had asked me I should have advised them to have the thing done at the City Hall. Mayor Strong is an old friend of mine, and would have

They went over to days before they came home, and Pete is going to give them a big reception on October 30. If you want a good dinner free of charge and some hard cider to drink come over," he added in his characteristic fashion. "You'll find Dave over there at the cashier's desk if you want to know anything more about it," he conclud-ed; "I've told you all I know, and it's all right. While this conversation was going on at least a score of pretty typewriters were craning their necks over their machines and giggling, while sly peeps from every clerk showed that ledger entries were being sadly neglected. The object at which the greater part of this attention was directed was a slim, good looking young fellow, with a slight mustache, who stood behind the cashier's desk. He blushed furiously when the reporter asked him if he was the hero of the story, but admitted that he was married, and was glad of it and everything was all right.

"But if there was no objection why did you do it secretly?" asked the reporter. "Well-er-we were afraid, you

A Hot Retort.

The widow Teeter's husband had been surface indications that she was about to marry again.

The late Mr. Teeter had not been exactly a model husband, and it was the general opinion that his death was a stroke of good fortune for Mrs. Teeter, but still the relatives of the deceased thought that his memory required a widowhood of at least a year. When the indications of the approaching marriage became apparent, some of her late hus-band's friends waited on Mrs. Teeter. One of them said:

"We hear that you are about to marry again, Lucy Ann."
"Well, I don't know that it is any of your business," replied Lucy Ann, "but if it will give you any satisfaction to know the facts, I don't mind telling you that I shall be a married woman again in about two weeks."
"But Tom has been dead less than three months." protested another.

"Well, I suppose he's as dead as he ever will be, isn't ha?"
"But" said a third, "you ought in common decency to wait until he is cold."
"Wait until Tom Teeter is cold!" repeated the widow, with fire in her eye. "If your theological belief is orthodox, you must know that I'om Teeter basn't a ghost of a show of ever getting cold.' Then the objecting relatives filed out and Mrs. Tester resumed the work of

At a recent meeting of the Directors of the Anderson Mutual Fire and Life Insu rance Company a fund was provided to meet losses as they occur until the Company has $200,000 insurance in force when it will be able to pay its own losses; so if one of of their policy-holders should suffer a loss the company is now prepared to pay him promptly. It was also arranged to give reduced rates until Dec. 1st. At that time the old rates will be re-established. This reduction is made by cutting the Agen some and by the officers releasing their entire commissions. Until Dec. 1st, the amount going into the loss fund from each premium is not reduced one cent.

THE VERDICT.

Now for the testimony. Dr. Martin, of Stuart's Gin and Buchu in his practice with fine results, and that he has even cured Bright's disease of the kineys with it after all other remedics

falled
Dr. Fontaine, of Rax, Gr, testifies that he has been prescribing Stuart's Gin and Buchu for some time, and that it is the best remedy he knows for kidney, urinary and all bladder troubles.
Mr. E. D. L. Mobley, of Atlants, testitifies that he suffered for years with some obscure kidney trouble, which at times gave him great pain and suffering. Algave him great pain and suffering. Alboth regular and irregular, he found no relief until he took STUARTS GIN AND BUCHU It made a perfect cure We could and much of same kind of testimony, but space and time forbid. If you suffer try a bottle; it will not disappoint you. Sold by all druggists.
